The TENA® Advantage:

Advanced Technology for Security, Comfort & Dignity

There are a number of factors that can influence the type of absorbent product selected. Families and caregivers should consider the most appropriate size, style and level of protection to meet the unique needs of each individual, while taking into consideration their overall quality of life. TENA®'s comprehensive product range is designed to handle multiple urinary episodes while maintaining skin dryness – whether the need is a small pad to manage just a few drops or a more absorbent brief to handle larger volumes of uncontrollable urine loss.

In Support of Individualized Care – Your Most Popular Questions Answered:

A Variety of Product Types for Individualized Care

TENA® Light Pads | TENA® Protective Underwear | TENA® Pads | TENA® Briefs

Q. How do Absorbent Products work?

A. When urine is passed, it is quickly wicked away from the skin...

1) Through the absorbent top core to keep the surface dry
2) And then into the bottom core
3) Where it is turned into a gel by the Super Absorbent Polymers
4) To prevent any leakage from coming back into contact with the skin. The product's surface stays dry – thus helping the skin's surface to stay dry.

Q. Why is Proper Sizing so important?

A. It is important to know that the size of the product is not directly related to the amount it can absorb. If the product selected is too large, it will not fit close to the body. The wearer may experience leakage, product sagging, skin irritation and loss of dignity. A properly-fitting absorbent product will encourage fluid to absorb evenly, will help prevent leakage and be more comfortable to wear.

Q. What is a Wetness Indicator?

A. The wetness indicator is a guide to indicate that the individual has passed urine and it should be monitored. However this does not mean the product is "full". There is still adequate absorbent capacity left in the product to help maintain dryness for extended wear situations like car travel or to allow for a few extra hours of restorative, undisturbed sleep. If a bowel movement is present, the product should always be changed right away.

Q. What are Nighttime Products?

A. Nighttime "multi-void" products contain added absorbency and are designed to keep an individual dry and comfortable over longer periods of time, especially at night to promote undisturbed sleep. Proper rest helps incontinent individuals be more alert in the daytime and more able to participate in the activities they enjoy.

Q. Which is more Important... Price only or Total Cost-in-use Performance?

A. The trend in today's economic environment is to purchase the lowest price-per-piece product. While on the surface this may appear to be the most economical solution, in reality it often results in higher daily usage and requires additional products to compensate for inferior product performance. Essity has demonstrated to thousands of care centers and individual consumers that the most cost-effective solution in managing adult incontinence is realized with the utilization of more technologically advanced products.
